Empowering Healthy Women Conference Set for April

When it comes to the life issues – abortion, euthanasia, stem cell research - there's a one-sided focus out there. Delaware Nurses for Life, in conjunction with Delaware Right to Life and the Delaware ProLife Coalition, plans to shine a light on solid, science-based research when they host the first annual women's health conference on April 2, 2011 at the University of Delaware's Clayton Hall.

Following a panel discussion format, the conference will feature several health care professionals who will address issues long ignored by the mainstream media. According to organizer Bess McAneny, president of Nurses for Life, "They will be covering many issues where truth has been obscured because of political correctness, such as abortion links to cancer, infant mortality, premature birth, black genocide, and post-abortion trauma," she said, adding that "the general public and even medical public aren't aware of the science so they buy into the media hype furthered by population controllers."

In addition to the above topics, the conference will also present information on the link between national health care "death panels" and euthanasia, as well as updates on stem cell research and vaccines. Invited speakers include nurses Kathy Hopkins, Mildred Lomabardi, and Kathy Arnold, as well as representatives from the Couple to Couple League, a natural family planning movement. The panel discussions will take place from 9 a.m. – 2 p.m. and light refreshments will be available.

Delaware to Participate in Local, National Marches

January's snow and cold can't keep pro-lifers down as they come out in droves to show their support for the unborn. Please join Delaware Right to Life in two special events this month. Our 6th annual Wilmington March for Life will take place on Friday, 12 – 1 p.m. in downtown as we proceed from Rodney Square to Planned Parenthood and back.

Signs will be provided when we meet at the Caesar Rodney statue.

The local event has proven a popular choice for those unable to attend that national march in Washington, D.C., as well as a core of committed pro-lifers who continue their goal of shutting down the abortion mill at 7th and Shipley Streets with weekly prayer vigils.

This year's 38th annual national March for Life in Washington, D.C. coincides with a national outlook that is at once bleak and hopeful. President Obama's continued assault on the unborn through his many abortion-supporting initiatives, as well as his support of embryonic stem cell research, euthanasia, and family-destroying legislation demands our pres-

PRESIDENT'S

Every January we're inundated with ads from retailers and health clubs claiming, "New Year, New You!" But for pro-life activists, our goal never changes: save more babies, help more women, and end abortion.

Specifically at DRTL, our goal is to educate more Delawareans on life issues. That means, be present at more community events, get into more schools to talk to students before abortion becomes an issue, stop anti-life and anti-family legislation and promote pro-life laws and legislators, and much more.

We have big plans for 2011. We hope to have a brand new school curriculum to present in the early months. Our goal is to "educate the educators" in addition to the students. Our 40 Days for Life Committee is already in full swing and those amazing ladies are on a roll. We will host our first annual Women's Health Conference in April and we're excited to see how this exploratory venture takes off.

We plan to expand our advertising to reach women in need, be it through city buses, shopping carts, or social media such as Facebook and Twitter. And with the arrival of two twenty-something board members, we're working on innovative ways to encourage youth to get involved.

In 2011, resolve to donate 2 hours a week to DRTL's life-saving ministry!

Conference to Cover Health Issues

"Informed consent is the key factor here – women aren't being informed about these links; people at the end of life when they sign advance directives aren't getting the full information about what that entails," says McAneny. In addition, national organizations such as the American Cancer Society, American Nurses Association, American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and the National Health Association keep this information at bay.

McAneny, a retired nurse, has first-hand experience with how the existing health care system rejects scientific evidence that doesn't advance its own agenda. "When I went down to the Infant Mortality Task Force (a Delaware health initiative) and presented research on the link of abortion to premature birth and infant mortality, my segment was the only one not in the final report," she said.

"Our goal is to arm people to be able to ask questions – regardless of where you stand on the issue you still need to KNOW, have informed consent," says McAneny, who urges women, parents, and anyone concerned about the future of women's health to attend.

ence in D.C. as a voice of peace and reason. The continued closing of abortuaries and the attrition of abortionists throughout the country means we must maintain our vigilance and hope for more miracles such as the conversion of Texas Planned Parenthood director Abby Johnson, who is now a pro-life activist.

Buses to the national march in Washington, D.C. will leave from the Christiana Mall bus depot area at 10 a.m. on Monday, January 24. (The March is NOT on January 22, rather on the closest weekday.) Please register with Eunice by calling 302-747-7301 or email eunice@derighttolife.org. Cost is $25/per person/$60 per family/$20 per student.

In Kent County, buses will leave Holy Cross Church after the 8:00 am Mass for Washington, DC. Bus cost is $15.00 per adult. Please call Ken Smith, (302) 674-1704 or send email to mflbus-2011@yahoo.com

Elkton, MD Site of Secret Late-Term Abortuary

A secret Elkton, Maryland abortuary became the latest to be exposed as a deadly, underhanded facility where money is the bottom line and illegal activities the norm.

Three “doctors” associated with the clinic – Steven Brigham, George Shepard, Jr., and Nicola Riley – have had their licenses revoked or suspended and the illegal scheme to perform late-term abortions by an unlicensed hack was shut down when a young woman suffered a botched abortion there last August. When authorities discovered that Stephen Brigham was transporting women from his clinic in Voorhees, New Jersey, where late term abortions are illegal, to Maryland, they raided his clinic in Elkton and discovered the bodies of 35 babies, some up to 36 weeks’ gestation, in a freezer there.

Local pro-life leaders are urging Cecil County State Attorney, Ellis Rollins, to bring criminal charges against Brigham, who has long had innumerable legal, medical, and ethical problems throughout his career as a baby killer.

Maryland law states that if an unborn baby is past viability and the baby’s life is taken in an illegal act, the perpetrator can be prosecuted for murder or manslaughter. Medical records indicated that many of the babies discovered there were well past viability.

34 of the bodies were ultimately released to Fr. Joseph Piekarski of Immaculate Conception parish and buried in their cemetery in Elkton.

A special Thank-You to all who contributed to our 2010 Christmas Appeal. Your generous donations totaled more than $6,000. We are grateful to all our donors and volunteers who helped us spread the prolife message in 2010. A blessed new year to all!

Betty McFann Billboard Memorial Fund

Sussex County proliferers lost a brave and spirited woman when Betty McFann passed away on December 2, 2010. Her dedication sparked a billboard campaign through the St. Edmond’s Respect Life Committee and her family wishes that the “Life—What a Beautiful Choice” billboard be a permanent fixture in Sussex County. Please send contributions to DRTL Education Fund and designate “Betty McFann Billboard Memorial Fund” on the check. Checks may be mailed to DRTL, P.O. Box 1222, Wilmington, DE 19899-1222.
